

REALD assignment criteria for 2024 American Community Survey

Last update: 8 July 2026

General Notes

- Method here is the same as prior versions: counts of individuals assigned to each REALD group are generated by classifying and counting responses in the statewide American Community Survey Public Use Microdata Sample (PUMS) for the state of Oregon
 - Responses are classified to REALD groups (assignment to more than one group is possible) based on ancestry, racial, ethnic/national origin, birthplace, and language characteristics
- Classification guidelines for each individual group are outlined in this script
 - Positive identification with a racial category (e.g., Black, White, Asian) or identification as “some other race alone” is a necessary condition for classification for most groups
 - e.g., IDing as Black is a necessary condition for classification in any African group
 - Exception: Middle East/North African (MENA) groups do not have this requirement, as there is currently no MENA racial category in the US Census
 - Ancestry corresponding to the specific REALD group is used as a sufficient condition
 - One or more ancestry keywords are defined for each REALD group
 - E.g., “Italian” or “Sicilian” are acceptable ancestry keyword matches for the White: Italian group
 - Note: not all PUMS records have a reported ancestry, leading to possible undercounting
 - Unlike in prior releases, language spoken at home or birthplace alone are not sufficient conditions for REALD classification
 - Instead, language and birthplace are now typically used for classification only in conjunction with a non-descript matching ancestry or race
 - E.g., for an individual born in Cambodia, their birthplace will only be used for classification if their detailed race is listed as the non-descript “Other Asian”
 - In the above example, this prevents people who are born in Cambodia but listing their race as “Chinese alone” (e.g.) as being classified as Cambodian
 - Each REALD category also has an “Other” group (e.g., “White: Other”, “African: Other”)
 - This group includes people who are classified as ethnic or racial groups not included in the set of REALD groups, e.g., French or Kenyan

- It also includes individuals who positively identify as a race but do not meet criteria for any other groups, e.g., a person IDing as White but born in the United States and not reporting any ancestry
 - Exception: there is no American Indian/Alaska Native (AIAN): Other group, as all individuals IDing as American Indian but providing no additional specific detail are classified as AIAN: American Indian
- Keyword matching happens primarily through use of regular expressions (“regex”), where PUMS responses (standardized by the ACS codebook) are encoded in text and these text-based fields are queried for partial keywords
 - e.g., using “^mex” to look for responses that start with “mex”, such as Mexico, Mexican, Mexican American, Mexican American Indian
 - We typically use the phrase “matching text” below to note where regex is used, although we do not list the specific keywords used to facilitate readability
 - In some instances, numeric codes are used instead of text matching when querying large, numerically contiguous sets of keys
 - Numeric codes can be found at this address, under variables ANC1P, ANC2P, LANP, POBP, RAC1P, RAC2P19, RAC2P24, RAC3P, and HISP
- Individual PUMS records may match multiple REALD criteria simultaneously
 - Primary REALD assignment, where each PUMS record is assigned one REALD, is handled separately (using the “rarest race” criteria, as of the 2024 release)
- Jewish ancestry is handled in a separate procedure, outlined at end of this document

Latin/Hispanic REALD groups

General comments:

- All Latin REALD groups require an individual to positively identify as Hispanic or as “some other race”
 - Exception: Afro-Latin requires individuals to identify as Hispanic or list a Latin American ancestry
- Assignments are typically made by matching specific keywords in the ancestry or Hispanic origin/ethnicity (“HISP”) fields
 - Birthplaces are typically used only to assign individuals where no other specific ancestry or origin information is provided, i.e., individual is classified as “Other Hispanic” for Hispanic origin and ancestry is either not listed or is “Latin, “Latino”, “Latin American”, or “Hispanic”

American Indian/Alaska Native (AIAN) REALD groups

General comments

- All AIAN REALD groups require an individual to positively identify as American Indian/Alaska Native or as “some other race”
 - Place of birth is used only for identifying Canadian First Nations, Alaska Native, and Latin American Indian
 - Specific tribal affiliations listed in detailed race (RAC2P19 or RAC2P24) are used for classification as well
- There is no “AIAN: Other” group, as all AIAN individuals without a specific non-US tribal affiliation or non-US/Alaska birthplace is assumed to be “[U.S.] American Indian” by default

Asian REALD groups

General comments:

- Preliminary assessment of PUMS suggested that birthplace and/or language alone are not sufficient for ancestry classifications, likely because international migration within Asia is very high
 - Solution: use ancestry or specific IDs in detailed race for classification, and use place of birth or language to assign for individuals whose detailed race is non-specific “Other Asian” or “Some Other Race”
 - “Other Asian Alone” gets used in RAC3P field when specific IDs are available in RAC2P field (e.g., an individual may have “Bangladeshi alone” in RAC2P but “Other Asian Alone” in RAC3P)
 - Solution: use non-specific “Other Asian Alone” or “Other Asian and Asian Groups” in RAC2P as sufficient for classification and including “Other Asian” but not “Other Asian Alone” in RAC3P for classification
- Detailed race for multi-racial individuals includes several labels that are non-informative because they include the text “and/or”, e.g., “Japanese; and/or Asian groups; and/or Native Hawaiian and other Pacific Islander groups; and/or some other race”
 - Solution: do not use labels including text “and/or” (henceforth, referred to as uninformative and/or) for classifications using detailed race fields because of ambiguity in these labels
- Central Asian (e.g., Tajik, Uzbek, Mongolian) and southeast Asian maritime states (excepting Philippines and Indonesia; e.g., Malaysia, Singapore, Brunei) are classified under “Asian: Other”

Native Hawai'ian/Pacific Islander (NHPI) REALD groups

General comments:

- All NHPI groups require either positive Pacific Islander or Native Hawai'ian ancestry or identifying as some other race alone
 - Although the PUMS distinguishes between Pacific Islander and Native Hawai'ian race IDs, both are used for all NHPI REALD groups (e.g., a person can be Tongan by identifying as Pacific Islander or Native Hawai'ian, plus having Tongan-specific attributes)
- The NHPI Other group primarily individuals IDing as other NHPI alone or two or more races, where reported detailed race is ambiguous (featuring “and/or” making specific assignment uncertain)
 - Specific attributes that frequently appear in “NHPI Other” individuals include: Filipino, Indonesian, or other maritime Southeast Asian individuals who ID as NHPI and individuals identifying with “Polynesian” ancestry, and individuals with birthplace listed as “other US island areas, Oceania, not specified, or at sea”
 - Australian and New Zealand NHPI individuals will also be classified as “NHPI Other” although Australia- and New Zealand-born people identifying as “some other race alone” will not

Middle Eastern/North African (MENA) REALD groups

General comments

- Unlike all other REALD groups, there currently is no distinct MENA racial category in census data
 - Solution: all assignments are made solely using ancestry, birthplace, and language information
 - Consequently, there are no race requirements for any MENA REALD groups
- Unlike other REALD groups, MENA Other delineates specific MENA countries (listed below) and thus is not mutually exclusive with other MENA groups
 - Note that in addition to ancestries associated with certain states (e.g., Yemeni), various minority group ancestries not associated with specific states (Kurdish, Syriac, Assyrian, Chaldean) are included in MENA: Other
- Birthplace is used in conjunction with non-descript “Arab”, “Arabic”, or “Mideast” ancestry

White REALD groups

General notes

- All individuals either must ID as white or as some other race alone
 - those IDing as some other race alone must also claim some European ancestry (numeric ancestry code 100 – 209)
- To minimize spurious assignment, birthplace and language are used for assignment when (1) both language and birthplace match and (2) ancestry is non-descript “European” (or geographic variants thereof, e.g., Northern European) or the non-descript “White”
- “White: Other” group is very large, mostly comprising individuals born in the United States and not reporting specific European ancestry (or any ancestry at all)
 - Also includes individuals with specific European ancestries not listed here, e.g., French, Spanish, Scandinavian

Other/Unspecified REALD

General comments

- Only criterion is not belonging to any other classified group
- De facto, all individuals classified as “Other/Unspecified” individuals identify as “some other race alone”, as individuals with any other specific racial IDs not matching another REALD group (e.g., unclassified/unspecified individuals IDing as Black get assigned to “African: Other”)

Jewish REALD groups

To incorporate Jewish identifiers in the ACS PUMS, we started with a statewide independent estimate of approximately 70,000 Jewish persons in Oregon from the 2020 report of the American Jewish Population Project (AJPP 2020; <https://ajpp.brandeis.edu>).

In the ACS, we found few ready proxies for likely Jewish status: speaking Yiddish or Hebrew at home, or Israeli ancestry. Yiddish was assigned to Ashkenazi and Hebrew or Israeli ancestry were assigned to Other (except Spanish speakers who indicated an Israeli ancestry, who were assigned Sephardi). These collectively accounted for a small fraction of the Jewish population.

To assign the remainder, we constructed a model based on the positive-unlabeled learning strategy described by Elkan and Noto \(2008\). We identified a survey dataset of Jewish residents of the Portland metro area for model training (a region representing 75% of the state's Jewish population, per the AJPP 2020). The model then assigned likelihood scores of Jewish identification for each REALD24 disaggregated category (Ashkenazi, Sephardi, Other) based on the characteristics in common between the two surveys (age group, race/ethnicity, poverty rate, income, education, foreign born status), by selecting observations by descending order of likelihood until the sum of the weights of selected persons matched the independent control total as closely as possible. This approach preserved the proportional breakdown between disaggregated categories in the training data, matches the best independent estimate of population size, and allows for consistent estimation of the population by REALD24 in the ACS PUMS.
